

Canada Introduces More Restrictions On International Travel

The Government of Canada has introduced new measures to limit the spread of COVID-19 and its new variants of the virus into Canada. This new two-pronged approach includes preventing travel to top winter destinations, as well as actively enforcing the country's mandatory quarantine rules. These new measures will work in conjunction with the mandatory pre-departure Covid-19 testing and proof of negative results required for all air travelers introduced in early January of this year.

Firstly, the Government of Canada announced new rules on international travel. The government and Canada's airlines have reached an agreement to suspend all flights to and from Mexico and Caribbean countries until at least April 30, 2021. The flight restrictions come into effect as of January 31, 2021.
